1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the crystal lattice. The author shows that the crystal lattice is a periodic arrangement of atoms or molecules in space. The periodicity is characterized by the lattice constant, which is the distance between two adjacent atoms or molecules in the same direction. The lattice constant is a function of the temperature and the pressure. The author also discusses the effect of the lattice constant on the physical properties of the crystal. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the theory of the structure of the liquid. The author shows that the liquid is a disordered arrangement of atoms or molecules in space.
The disordered arrangement is characterized by the mean square displacement, which is the average of the square of the displacement of an atom or molecule from its initial position.
The mean square displacement is a function of Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and is mostly illegible due to fading and damage. There are two distinct dark circular marks, possibly holes or ink stains, on the left and right sides of the page. The script appears to be from a European language, possibly German or Dutch, given the structure of the words and the use of capital letters. The text is arranged in several lines across the page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or a page from a manuscript. The text is written in dark ink on aged, yellowish paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page. There are two prominent dark circular marks, possibly holes or ink blots, located near the center of the page. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be underlined or written in a slightly larger hand than others. The overall appearance is that of an old, handwritten document.
